Past performance does not guarantee future results. Selling call options reduces the Funds' ability to profit from increases in the value of the Funds' equity portfolio, and purchasing put options may result in the Fund's loss of premiums paid in the event that the put options expire unexercised. To the extent that the Fund reduces its put option holdings relative to the number of call options sold by the Fund, the Fund's ability to mitigate losses in the event of a market decline will be reduced. The Funds are non-diversified, meaning it may concentrate its assets in fewer individual holdings than a diversified fund. Therefore, the Fund is more exposed to individual stock volatility than a diversified fund. Fund's ability to mitigate losses in the event of a market decline will be reduced. An investment in either of these Funds involves risk, including possible loss of principal. Exchange Traded Funds and Mutual Funds involve risk, including possible loss of principal. There is no guarantee the Funds will meet its objective. The Funds will use put and call options, which are referred to as "derivative" instruments since their values are based on, or derived from, an underlying reference asset, such as an index. Derivatives can be volatile, and a small investment in a derivative can have a large impact on the performance of the Fund as derivatives can result in losses in excess of the amount invested. Options used by the Funds to reduce volatility and generate returns may not perform as intended. There can be no assurance that the Funds' option strategy will be effective. It may expose the Funds to losses, e.g., option premiums, to which it would not have otherwise been exposed. Further, the option strategy may not fully protect the Funds against declines in the value of its portfolio securities. The prices of options may change rapidly over time and do not necessarily move in tandem with the price of the underlying securities.
